ORDER

AND NOW, this 9th day of July, 2013, upon consideration of plaintiff's motion for appointment of counsel (Doc. 10), and assuming that plaintiff's claims have an arguable basis in law and fact¹, and it appearing, at this early juncture in the proceedings, from the complaint (Doc. 1), amended complaint (Doc. 9) and this motion (Doc. 10), which was accompanied by a memorandum of law (Doc. 11) and supporting declaration (Doc. 12), that he is capable of properly and forcefully prosecuting his claims, and that discovery neither implicates complex legal or factual issues nor requires factual investigation or the testimony of expert witnesses, see Tabron v. Grace, 6 F.3d 147, 155-57 (3d Cir. 1993) (listing factors relevant to request for counsel), and it being well-established that there is no constitutional or statutory right to counsel in a civil case, Montgomery v. Pinchak, 294 F.3d 492, 498 (3d Cir. 2002); Parham v. Johnson, 126 F.3d 454, 456-57 (3d Cir. 1997); Tabron v. Grace, 6 F.3d 147, 153-43 (3d Cir.1993), and that district courts have broad discretion to determine whether to appoint counsel under 28 U.S.C. § 1915, it is hereby ORDERED that the motion (Doc. 10) is DENIED. If further proceedings demonstrate the need for counsel, the matter will be reconsidered either sua sponte or upon motion of plaintiff.
